

Parliamentary committees

- Important points
- Not mentioned in constitution but mentioned in rule of business
- These are two types one is adhoc which is temporary in nature formed time to time when needed other one is standing committee which is permanent in nature
- No of members in these committees varies from 3- 8 mainly cabinet ministers are the members however non cabinet ministers not barred from the membership
- Most of the time cabinet headed by prime ministers when he is in the cabinet
- These cabinet committees based on division of labour and effective delegation
- From 2016 onward mainly 6 main cabinet committees namely political ,economic ,parliamentary affairs committee ,committee on security ,on accommodation ,appointment committee
- These are the committees which are merged with another committee and absorbed permanently cabinet committee on management of natural calamities ,the cabinet committee on price,the cabinet committee on world trade organization
- Who is the chairman of parliamentary affairs committee by the home minister
- Which committee is called super committee political affairs committee,what is the role of group of ministers adhoc bodies give recommendation on emerging issues presently the 21 Gom
- There is also empowered group of ministers which are 6 in numbers
- How is parliamentary committee classified –standing committee and adhoc committee standing committee are the permanent and adhoc are temporary
- What are the six categories of standing committee these are committees based on financial matters called financial committee ,departmental committee committee to enquire committee to scrutinise and control,committee related to day to day business of the house house keeping committee or service committee
- How many types of financial committees there are 1) public account committee 2)estimate committee 3)committee on public undertaking
- Describe the features of above the committees point wise 1)public account committee set up in 1921 provision under gov of india act 1919 members are 22, 15 from lok sabha 7 from rajya sabha the members of public account committee elected every year by means of principle of proportional representation by single transferable vote tenure of this committee is 1 year any minister can not be appointed as its member the chairman of this committee is among the members and appointed by speaker
- What is the function of public account committee is to examine the audit report of CAG which is to be presented to the president and the parliament CAG presents its report to president and president laid it before parliament